

HYPERALLERGIC

Art

10 Exhibitions to See in Upstate New York This March

This month: Sean Hemmerle, Nell Brookfield, Meg Webster, a show dedicated to books, and more.

Taliesin Thomas February 28, 2024

Will Hutnick, “Shake the Sheets” (2023), acrylic, ink and wax pastel on canvas, 36 x 48 inches (photo by Walker Esner, courtesy the artist and Geary Contemporary)

Will Hutnick: SATELLITE

Will Hutnick explores topographies and time through a distinct painterly practice that layers acrylic, wax pastel, colored pencil, and spray paint on canvas. His solo show SATELLITE at Geary Contemporary in Millerton presents a series of works with curious titles such as “Hideaway” (2023) and “Shake the Sheets” (2023). Hutnick describes his work in the press release as “glitch-type spaces” that are inherently queer, and flush with imaginative potential. His larger work “Photopsia” (2024), for example, is a rich layering of abstract shapes, purple hues, and a rugged black and white pattern that appears to magically warp the entire right side of the painting.

Geary Contemporary (geary.nyc)

34 Main Street, Millerton, New York

Through April 7